CLASS HISTORY

or

"The Perils of Our High School Years"

Cast - Class of 1960

Setting - Berlin High School

Time - September 1956 - June 1960

ACT I

As the curtain rose in September, 1956, we found ourselves entering Berlin High School with mixed emotions, but looking forward to our freshman year. After becoming accustomed to new classes, routines, and teachers, we were welcomed with open arms, our arms, of course, for senior books. After a week of chaos — dolls, songs, and bur-lap sacks, we were formally accepted by the Class of '57 at the Freshman Reception.

To the embarrassment of the upper classmen, our class placed first in the Magazine Drive and the Cross Country Meet. Even with this winning streak we lost, when Mrs. Schmidt, our class adviser, left us. However, our hopes rose again when Mrs. Chenette took her place.

On June 7, 1957 we bade farewell to our big brothers and sisters with a dance in their honor, making the fabulous sum of $7.58. Well, we didn't lose anything but our seniors.

ACT II

The following September our class entered its second year at B.H.S. This year we made a fine start with our dance "Harvest Moon." Our treasury grew with leaps and bounds when we won the Magazine Drive for the second time. To our delight we won the Cross Country Meet once more. Our joy was shortlived when we lost our class adviser again.

ACT III

The third year found us as upperclassmen with our new adviser, Mrs. Johnson. The work for our year book began early.

This year the first Homecoming Day was held. The queen and her court reigned over both the football game and the dance at night. With experienced salesmen we won the Magazine Drive for the third time.

After great planning and anticipation we gave our first formal, "Deep Purple," a brilliant success. Adding to the excitement of this evening was the presentation of class rings by our ring chairman, Ken Munson.

Our last dance of the year "The Record Roundup" was also a success, both socially and financially. With the graduation of the seniors, we inherited the long awaited pleasures of the Senior Walk.

ACT IV

The final curtain found us preparing ourselves for the long road ahead. First on the agenda was the initiation of the Freshman Class. We proudly presented them with our books and stood attentively to hear "Our Song." To welcome them we gave a dance in their honor; surprisingly, we made a profit. Like the rest of the exalted seniors before us, we had a booth at the Berlin Fair at which we sold Christmas novelties.

After two weeks of second or third place (mostly third), we shocked the whole school by winning the Magazine Drive — the only class to accomplish this feat four years in succession. Our senior, Nancy Caccavale, reigned as Homecoming Queen in the second annual Homecoming Day events.

One by one the days passed as the Senior Ball and Class Night drew near. With much zeal and anticipation we planned both and watched each become part of memory.

We finally heard the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" and knew that we would never return, except as alumni.

Many memories flood our thoughts, as we take our individual paths. May each of us be blessed with good fortune and happiness.

CLASS PROPHECY

"Around the World in 1985"

"Attention! Attention, Flight 60!

It is now leaving at Gate 85.

Last call: Will Elinor Brainerd and Richard Bighinatti please report to their flight."

Airline hostess Kathy Bidwell greets them as they enter their atomic-powered jet. Coming out to assure the passengers of their safety are pilot, Kenny Lamkins, and navigator, Dick Warner.

10 minutes later on a street corner in New York — "Extra! Extra!" shouts newsman Paul Chant. "Read all about it! Dennis Zarotney elected Mayor of New York; Paul Perry sentenced to 10 years in Sing Sing for flying paper airplanes in the U.N.!"

Our travelers, arriving in the Village, stop at Dodson's Night Spot. They are greeted by Margaret and Joy, and are entertained by the famous jazz singer, Cynthia May. After a pleasant meal served by Betty Root and Diane Bosso, the voyageurs return to the airport in a taxi driven by Billy Driscoll . . . "Fasten your seat belts! We are now landing in Chicago." Driving through Chicago, they see the famous cattle buyers, Dawne Beveridge and Duane Lewis. Continuing their tour, they stop at Alvin Ravizza's elite Blue Chip Casino for some refreshments which are served by Bertha Distin . . .

They arrive in Los Angeles just in time to see John Brunette hit a home run off pitcher Pete Catalano. Sportscaster Tim Gerdis is going wild!

Taking a bus ride to San Francisco they pass the Golden Gate Bridge, where they see Meta Nielson and Carol Bugay painting the scenery.

From San Francisco to Hawaii they travel on board one of Bill Schwartz's luxury ocean liners, piloted by Captain David Guite. The ship's director, Nancy Booth, has a well planned program which includes entertainment by world famous accordionist, Bruce Pavlech, and chorus line, Alicia Graziano, Janet Georgini, Judy Gregson, Irene Maerz, and Barbara Larson.

Upon arrival in Hawaii, Rich and Elinor are greeted by the governor and first lady, Bob Cardello and Judy Skinner. Spending an afternoon on the beach, they see Jerry Chaviaras and Cliff Wilcox surf board riding. That evening they attend a Hawaiian Luau, where they meet Betsy Williams and Kenny Cianci on their second honeymoon.

Early the next morning their plane takes off for China. They tour Shanghai in a rickshaw pulled by Gregory Golab. They see fisherman Bob Pac, Dennis Fagan, and Dennis Carbo, coming in with their day's catch.

At a stopover in Tibet they find guide, Donald Wells, and climbers, Tom Walsh and Harry Thompson, still trying to climb Mt. Everest.

Next stop India . . . Their first sight upon reaching India is Donald Tourtelotte, leading his sacred cow into the Taj Mahal to be sacrificed. In front of the great walls surrounding the palace of John Osik and his harem, Lincoln Versachi charms his trained snakes.

They accept an invitation from Jackie Morales to sail to Africa on her luxurious yacht. Richard Trevethan and Shiela Pabst meet them at the port and lead their safari into the deep, dark depths of the jungle. As they reach an outpost in the jungle, Dr. Gene Grabowski and missionary nurse, Heather Nordgren, are treating the natives. Witch doctor, Bob Centurelli, is performing a ceremony in front of his hut. Upon reaching the edge of the Sahara Desert they join a camel caravan led by Steve Fallis. Camel drivers, Richard Forauer and Ronald Dalke, point out Carol Parzych trying to raise African violets in the middle of the desert. Sergeant Wayne Martin leads his squadron on across the arid wasteland.

In Iran they pass through the large oil fields owned by Jim Honiss.

At the Russian border, guards Larry Schubert and Bill Voorhees offer Elinor and Richard an armored car to be driven by Roger Seaburgh to continue their trip through Russia. While passing through Siberia, they see Frank Lemanski supervising a salt mine. From Siberia they go to the American Embassy in Moscow, where they are welcomed by Jody Hess, U.S. Ambassador to Russia. In passing through Russia, they stop to chat with Aline Andros, Susan Deming and Ann Hazlett, famous Olympic track stars.

From Moscow they travel to Warsaw, Poland, where they find Joyce Walicki and Joyce Dudek working as counter intelligence agents.

They charter a plane from Mona Thureson and take off for Stockholm. There they enjoy food from Pearson's and Bergeson's Delicatessen. They attend a party given by world famous caterer, John Olson, in honor of Eloise Barraco, who has just received the 1985 Nobel Prize, which was presented by Sweden's Prime Minister Richard Olander.

Donald Hardacker flies them by helicopter to a U.S. Army base in Hamburg. Pushing their way through a crowd of screaming teenagers, they come upon Frank Slowik, singing idol of millions, with his friend and agent, Ray Cassidy.

They visit the Bill Lipske Hofbrau on the outskirts of Frankfurt and are given a guided tour by hostess Chris Dempsey.

They board a Baschund bus headed for Fritzson's Alpine Resort in the mountains of Switzerland. While there, Terry Wasielak gives them expert skiing lessons. Before leaving Switzerland, they come upon Michael Seich, punching holes in Swiss cheese and hear the fading echoes of Bob Ragaglia, yodeling deep in the hills.

Their fist stop in Italy is Ron Argazzi's Pizza Palace. Outside this famous night spot Rich and Elinor watch Maryann Kerelejza and Marilyn Kozuch squashing grapes for wine with their bare feet.

Patrick Cammorata poles them around the canals of Venice in his gondola. They change some of their money at the Bank of Naples, where Claire Tonina is a teller. They take a trip to the large port of Naples, where they come upon the Knowlton and Robalewski Exporting Agency.

On a short trip to Pompeii they find the famous archaeologist, Bruce Anderson, studying some newly found art facts.

On the U.S.S. Johnson, a navy skiff, they cross the Mediterranean to Spain. Commander of the skiff is Admiral John Corvi with Ensigns Allan Heidorn and George Petit.

During their first afternoon in Spain they attend a bullfight where the famous matador, David Tousignant, is to appear. That evening they are entertained by Juanita Drake and her famous dancing troupe, including Pat Lowchy and Linda Miller.

They take a train across the Pyrenees into Marseille. There they pay a visit to English teacher, Roberta Beecher, who takes them to a cafe owned by Elaine From, where a modern jazz trio, Kenny Munson, Barry Seelig, and Dennis Pisko are playing.

On arrival in Paris, a famous fashion store is their first stop, where a former Miss America, Nancy Caccavale, models exclusive dresses. Elinor has her hair styled by Mme. Veronica Bochan, and Masseur Walter Simcik gives Rich a relaxing rubdown. Lonnie Ferrero sells them one of her paintings of the River Seine. They stop to look at an attractive window display in Sara Bradbury's Flower Shop.

Their train to Holland stops at the Hague, where lawyer Vincent Brescia is arguing a famous case. An exhibition of figure skating is viewed by Elinor and Richard, with Gail Russell and Richard Labbe performing. On a dairy farm owned by Eddie Dubuc, they see a windmill, one of the traditional symbols of Holland.

The Duchess of Windsor, Carol Nalewajek, greets them as they leave their plane in London. They go to a beach outside the city and watch, as Jerry Turner and Muriel LaFlamme complete their swim of the English Channel. They see Bill Gibbs and Jim King standing guard at Buckingham Palace. Dave Woodruff rides a race horse to victory at Epsom Downs, as our two world travelers cheer him on.

Pat Dyer cooks them each a hot bowl of Irish stew as they wait for a trans-atlantic steamer in Dublin.

On the boat home, Elinor visits Sharon Holmes, who is a nurse in the ship's infirmary. Susan Richards gives one of her world famous piano concerts in the main ballroom.

Larry Supernant and Joe Lauria pilot the tugboat which eases their ship into the harbor at Newfoundland, where we come upon Bill Fairbank and Norman Talbot running guided tours. They help two other travelers, Irene Picard and Marilyn Holmes, who are confused in registering for plane tickets to Hartford.

The two make their reservations for the final leg of their trip, with Gale Clarke at the ticket counter.
